2. On 14 August 1970, the project engineer telephoned the contractor in order to determine the status of the final report. The project manager at Corning stated that the report would be forwarded shortly. He was advised that final payment could not be made until receipt of the report.  3. The final report was received in late September. Interrogation of the contractor disclosed that internal administrative approval of the report was the cause of delay.  4.
